

I am currently training to be a secondary history teacher with Nottingham Trent University. I have previously worked in the finance sector and now run my own business teaching Art and Creativity to all ages and abilities. I have been a parent governor for over 2 years and my eldest daughter spent 7 happy years at the school, having now moved onto secondary education. My youngest child is now in reception. I have a degree in Sociology and International Relations and a Diploma of Higher Education in History. My interests include running, creativity and spending time with friends and family.
